

Title of course: The Use of Activating Methods in Special Education

Lecturer: mgr Katarzyna Ouzguid

Course description:

The main aim of the course is to introduce students to various activating methods in teaching students with special educational needs, including graphic, expressive, problem-based methods. The student will consider necessary adaptations in applying given methods with students with different special educational needs. The place, role and potential of activating methods in special education will be discussed, as well as problems with their implementation. Students will not only learn the specifics of selected techniques and activation methods, but will also practice them.
