Lecturer: dr Maria Cecilia Zsögön

This seminar explores the changing concept of childhood across history, examining how cultural, social, and technological shifts have influenced children's roles, experiences, and education. From traditional family structures to the impact of digital media, we will discuss key milestones in the development of childhood, focusing on how societal expectations, parental roles, and the idea of "childhood" itself have evolved. We will gain new insights into the past, present, and future of growing up in a rapidly changing world.
